MY TURN YOUR TURN: Songs for Building Social Skills

A Parents Choice Award Winner! A Parenting Magazine Pick

Singer-songwriter, Cathy Bollinger sparkles with thoroughly singable songs, that gently address the needs of children who find social interaction confusing or challenging. Using descriptive, social story-like phrases to talk about concrete situations, My Turn Your Turn sings children through the tricky territory of engaging with others. Songs touch on empathy, asking for help, handling anger, and other daily social skills. With music that makes lessons fun to learn, Bollinger, a certified music therapist, breaks common everyday interactions down into simpler and more understandable activities. And because children are attracted to the voices of other children, Cathy has chosen some great kids to accompany her. Common skills include asking for help, saying hello and goodbye, looking towards someone's eyes when you speak with them, taking turns, saying please and thank you, and the recognition that everyone has strengths.

Ready to Learn: Songs for School Success * A Parent's Choice Winner *

Get Ready to Learn! Cathy Bollinger, a much-loved singer-songwriter who also happens to be a Certified Music Therapist, has written these tunes for use in today's everyday world. These multisensory songs, ranging from snazzy to jazzy, will help your child and/or students have success in school. The songs teach children basic skills such as listening, following directions, repetition of basic living skills, using friendly manners towards others, focusing on their work, transitioning from one activity to another, and lining up. Plus, TWO bonus tracks are included for a quick reminder or cue to line up or to change activities.

Tunes That Teach: The Fun Way to Learn Everyday Lessons

Tunes that Teach instruct through tunes, but the process never feels like learning. Bollinger masterfully weaves rhythm and rhyme with melody and harmony to create sing-a-long songs. Before you know it, your children will be singing the days of the week, trilling about the four seasons, marching around to the beat of a phone number and happily chanting "Please may I?" , "Thank you very much," and "May I be excused?" Little ones will be bopping around to first words like bat, cat, bee, knee, red and bed as well as singing the word, "Loud," well, loudly! You will hear lots of different instruments: a marimba, a pedal steel guitar, a mandolin, a tuba, a fretless bass, a sax, a trumpet, a kalimba and more.

Toddlin Tunes: Sing-Along With Cathy Bollinger A Parents Choice Award Winner!

With her crystal clear voice, Bollinger gives us old favorites, then dishes up unique arrangements and melodic, memorable originals that expose children to new words, sounds, instruments and musical styles. There's a saucy rendition of "Patty Cake," with a sassy, jazzy swing. African log drums thunder through "Five Little Monkeys Jumping on the Bed." The men's acappella group, Hullabahoos, accompany Bollinger on "The Muffin Man." An Irish fiddle lilts through the original "Uh Oh," and a dreamy calypso rhythm makes singing, "Please and Thank You," anything but ordinary.

Singing Words: Songs for Language Development

Singing Words, the incredibly rich sequel to Singing Sounds, turns the important and complicated task of learning to talk into something as sweet as a song. In all her inventive lyrics, Bollinger makes ample use of the common, everyday words-zoo, beach, car, store, sky, grass, pizza, blue, green, ice cream-children learn first. Then she miraculously splices in a good bit of reasoning so each song meets and stretches children at a variety of developmental stages. And that means everyone sings! Well aware of what children learn when, and how, Bollinger sneaks little lessons into a melodic and instrumentally diverse framework. In Singing Words, she introduces children to pronouns ("Where could my little bear be? Where is she?"), question words ("Who delivers the mail? The faithful mailman.") and more!

Singing Sounds: Songs for Learning Early Speech Sounds

Singing Sounds is the result of a careful collaboration between certified music therapist and singer-songwriter, Cathy Bollinger and a speech pathologist. Because each song emphasizes a specific sound-for example, "Gosh By Golly, I Giggled Again," "Fee Fi Fo Fum," and "Leo the Lazy Lion," this CD is a tool that helps children develop language skills that are the basic building blocks for reading. This CD is a delightful, spirited blast using all manner of musical instrument, including a banjo, a bugle, fife, French horn, a train whistle and. . . pots and pans! This rollicking collection of songs helps children form correct speech sounds by breaking words down into sounds and syllables.

From a Mother's Heart: Original and Traditional Lullabies for Mother and Baby

Soothing, soft and sweet, From a Mother's Heart creates the backdrop for those enchanted moments between mother and child when the sun's been shaded away, the stories have all been told, and the baby you're rocking in your arms is slowly drifting off to sleep. . . that dreamy time when all mothers sing. From a Mother's Heart has enough beautiful renditions of traditional lullabies-"Stay Awake," "Mockingbird," and "All the Pretty Little Horses. She included songs that fulfilled her twin goals of lulling newborns while soothing the frayed nerves of new mothers. These tender and personal lullabies have worked their calming magic on thousands of infants and on thousands of mothers.
